Short description

The Ordesa-Viñamala Biosphere Reserve has the honor of being one of the first two declared in Spain. It is one of the best representations of the mountain ecosystems of the Pyrenees linked to erosion and glacial formations, and extensive plant formations of unique value. Likewise, it is home to unique flora and fauna species within the regional and international context, many of them with some degree of threat, whose conservation is essential for the maintenance of biological diversity.

Management entity	Consortium formed by the Town Halls of the territory, the Government of Aragon and the National Parks Autonomous Organization (OAPN).
